REGINA, November 20.

The advisory council tendered their resignation on Saturday, and the lieutenant governor accepted it. On Monday the lieutenant governor sent for Clinchskill to form a council. Clinchskill consented to do so, if the claims of the majority of the house as to the control of the funds were conceded by the lieutenant governor. He accepted. Nov. 21. — Mr. Cayley, the new governor, was seen on Wednesday, and demanded, before accepting office, that a full account of the funds voted last year be laid before the house; that the full amount of the funds available for the present year be laid before the house; that the sum expenditure be under the control of an advisory board having the confidence of a majority of the house. The governor did not refuse, and has not yet consented to the demands. Preparations are being made to finish the business of the session to-morrow.

REGINA, November 22.

The lieutenant governor still refuses to allow the assembly to control the federal funds for expenses of government in the Northwest Territory, or to account for the monies voted last year for that territory. The assembly refused to accept an advisory council, unless the accounts of last year, and the estimates for the current year, are submitted to the assembly, inclusive of the territorial grant. It also refused to vote the territorial grant. A statement of the case has been ordered by the assembly to be telegraphed to Ottawa. Yesterday an ordinance was passed, placing executive powers in the Territorial officer, in the hands of an advisory council, as intended by the Northwest act. The governor is said to assent to this arrangement as a means of tiding over the present difficulty, in which case the sum of government, and the expenditure of the Territories, about one and a half million dollars, will go on smoothly, but if he objects, he may create a dead lock. There will probably be about eight hundred men in each of the districts in the federal funds, which besides the five hundred now under expenditure, which comes from the federal funds, and probably three hundred dollars more from the federal fund, in all about $1,000 for each district, for the year. The balances of the sum will be used for settling, and prorogation takes place this afternoon.

BATTLEFORD, November 19.

On the night following their appointment, they made a big haul of their brethren on charges of being drunk and buying and having intoxicants in their possession. They got a warning to be more careful in the future.

The Temperance colonization company, in 1888, apportioned free town lots, and supplied lumber to build houses, to settlers, at a valuation, with interest at six per cent, until paid. There was a clause in the agreement by which the company might take possession of the land after a certain time, if principal and interest was not paid. Taking advantage of this clause they have now taken possession of the buildings owned by G. W. Grant, and occupied by the police detachment at barracks, and the house of Mr. Kell, which was owned by a railroad contractor. Steps are being taken to dispossess other settlers as well.

SECTIONALISM.

This fall a party of Germans from Prussia and Hamburg, arrived in Manitoba with the intention of settling in the country and engaging in farming. Some time was spent in looking over Manitoba and Dakota, but nothing was found to suit them there. The best land in Manitoba was already taken, and Dakota was not satisfactory. They were recommended to go to Dunmore, near Medicine Hat, and went, but were disgusted apparently with the prospect there, and returned to Winnipeg, with their minds made up to leave Canada and try Washington Territory. When along the line they were informed that it was no use going north of the C. P. R. belt as the land was even worse farther north. These people were in Winnipeg a few days ago waiting to receive an answer to a letter of inquiry they were recommended to send to the proprietor of this paper, asking about Edmonton. About the beginning of October the Calgary papers were very hostile over a statement in the BULLETIN about "Calgary, its soil, climate, and surroundings, being the ruin of this country in the eastern mind," referring to the snow storm in September, that so thoroughly sickened the Ontario excursionists who were there at that time. This incident however is only another of many proofs of the truth, that not only Calgary, but the country eastward along the line for distance is in a gross misrepresentation of what the appearance and resources of the Territories really are. The dreary prospect presented by the long, flat, dry, and desert looking country, through which the C. P. R. runs for hundreds of miles east of the Rockies is a bad enough recommendation, without those who live along the line deliberately making such lying statements about the country to the north. No one can blame the people of any district for putting forth every legitimate effort to secure settlers for that part of the Northwest in which they live. It is right that they should do so, and emigrants will be secured more rapidly, by each settler becoming an agent to get some one to settle on the vacant section beside him, than by any other means. Every settler thinks he lives in the most desirable district in the country, and has the best section in that district, and no one objects to him so thinking. If he did not his business would be to find a better. But what suits one person may be objectionable to another. Different people have different conceptions as to what constitute a desirable location for farming, and these conceptions are based on the peculiar kind of farming that is suited to the soil, climate, and surroundings which in their individual minds constitute a desirable location for a farm. Consequently the part that is perfect in one person's eyes may be looked at in an entirely different light by another. There is no doubt, to a great extent, to sectionalism in the Northwest. The country is large, and varied in soil, climate, and soil, and appearance, and it is very difficult for a person who has not travelled over it to know the facts about any parts except that what he has himself seen. But because one section is lacking in some qualities, it does not follow that all are. The lack of timber in the south is no proof that it is wanting in the north. If the appearance and condition of the country along the line near Medicine Hat does not suit a emigrant from Europe, it does not follow that he would not be pleased with that along the North Saskatchewan. At least why should any one, be he farmer or agent, prevent a personal inspection, by saying it is worse to the north. Any one who makes such a statement is either lamentably ignorant or deliberately lies, or both. Misrepresentation by eastern and southern people has been the greatest hindrance to the development of the little belt of the Northwest. If these misrepresentations put money in the pockets of those making them, or added settlers to their own district, there might, from a mercenary point of view, be a small excuse for making them, but when, as in this case, it drives desirable settlers out of the country altogether to live under another flag, it is utterly incomprehensible and inexcusable. Those Germans did not like the appearance of the soil near Dunmore, and had made up their minds not to settle there. Why not then encourage them to visit some other districts and see if they would not suit. This would have been the patriotic way, and would probably have kept their money in the country, and placed on our lands a class of industrious, contented settlers. The development of one part, does not interfere with the development of all. The filling in of the northern part of the Territories will not make it any more difficult to pasture cattle and raise grain in the southern districts. The south has its bunch grass and what is known as the buffalo grass, the north has rich soil, plenty of good water, timber and minerals and a favorable climate. If any one does not like the pasture lands of the south, why prevent them from seeing the agricultural lands of the north. An effort is likely to be made to induce these Germans and Mennonites, now in Manitoba, to send a representative to Edmonton, before finally taking leave of Canada. If successful and they decide on locating here and thus help fill up our great national heritage it will not be through, but in spite of, the efforts of those who live along the line of the C. P. R. The proper thing to do would be for the people of each district to use every effort to secure settlers for their own vacant lands, and failing in that to secure them for the Territories, by representing, instead of misrepresenting the advantages in some things that other districts have over theirs, and in which may be found the very qualities that are lacking in their own, and which would command it to an intending settler, while they might receive additions by the same policy pursued by some other part of this large country, diversified as it is by bare plain and lofty mountains, by bluffs, hills, timber, lakes and rivers, and a soil of varying depth and richness.

FRASER & CO.

LAST mail brought several letters of enquiry about this district from different persons, who intend emigrating to the northwest next spring. One gentleman is a contractor in Cheshire, England, who has a practical knowledge of farming, and who desires, to come to some place suitable for sheep raising. Another from Muskoka intends coming west with his brother next spring who has a large family of boys all able to work, and who would like to rent or lease an improved farm for a year or two until they could get settled on places of their own. If satisfactory replies are sent these men, it is altogether likely they will select this place as their future home. Everyone coming in helps to increase the wealth of the district and advertise the place, by making it known to their friends and acquaintances. One of the needs of Edmonton just now is suitable emigration literature, showing the resources and advantages of the place, and that would be available as replies to the many inquiries being made, and that are likely to be made, in the future. This could be done by the compiling or printing of a pamphlet, or by following the example of the Macleod board of trade, by an enlarged issue of the local paper filled with descriptions of the country and its resources etc., serve the purpose. This could be done with less expense, and would probably be more satisfactory in many ways than the printing of a pamphlet. It might be wise for the board of trade here to talk the matter over at its next meeting, and see if something in this line could not be done to bring the place more prominently before intending emigrants, both in Eastern Canada, and in Great Britain. Copies would be available to send in answers to letters of enquiry, and which certainly, would be more full than any letter, hurriedly written by an individual, could possibly be.

AFTER the high ground taken by the Regina Leader last year on the question of responsible government, it was a surprise to many to find it this year defending the governor in the arbitrary course he pursued with his advisory board and severely criticizing the board for not allowing themselves to be the tools of his honor. From the first indication of trouble between the governor and his advisors it has been constantly defending the former and blaming the latter. The Journal claims to have discovered the reason of the change of tune. It says that one of the differences between the governor and the board was over the government printing the former persisting that it should be done at the Leader office. Consequently Mr. Haultain who was the head of the old board and who the Leader thought was the born statesman, now has "an extraordinary lack of judgement and sense of fitness." A little government patronage did it all.

AFTER January 1st, 1890, no more pre-emptions will be granted to parties taking up homesteads. Sufficient notice has been given of this change in the law to enable all parties interested to secure their pre-emptions by making entries before that date. There are several settlers in this district who have postponed making their entries, although they have erected buildings, built fences and brought considerable land under cultivation. Any such improvement made on their pre-emptions will be lost with them, unless an entry is made accompanied by the entry fee of $20 for homestead and pre-emption, 320 acres of land is certainly more desirable than 160 acres, and there is no reason why any settler who has not yet secured that much should not do so before the law permitting him to do so expires, while the withholding of pre-emption rights is an unwise move on the part of the government yet it is the law, and the wisest thing to do under the circumstances will be for those interested to make their entries before the last of December and secure the right to purchase at a nominal price an extra 160 acres when they are ready to do so.

GENERAL

The fall of snow on southern ranches during the recent blizzard averaged three feet on the level. The loss of beef cattle and sheep was enormous.

Good beer, cigars, music and singing were the ingredients to the people of Calgary to attend a concert in the mounted police barracks on November 11th.

Lager beer, as its name indicates, should be kept at least six months after it is barrelled. The German government have a law to this effect and enforce it rigorously. On this continent no such rule is observed and been broken. Lager beer is adulterated. The great increase in renal complaints is said to date to the inferior lager that is now supplied all over Canada and the States.

An Ottawa despatch to the Pioneer Press says: The absence today of the names of Hon. Geo. Foster and lady from the list of cabinet ministers and their wives who were invited Thursday to dinner with Sir John and Lady Macdonald at Earl's Court prove that Lady Macdonald intends to ignore her husband's minister of finance and his Chicago divorced wife. That means ostracism from Canadian society for them.

The discovery of one hundred human skeletons in the cellar of San Salvador has created a great sensation. It is asserted that the skeletons are victims of the late president, and that the sudden, and mysterious, disappearance of many persons who apparently had no enemies accounted for these horrible discoveries. Zaldivar was the Honduras priest, who was sent by Barrios, and forced upon Salvador as president. After placing a loan of a million dollars in the hands of the public, with an English banking house, near the close of his term, he fled the country, stopped in London long enough to draw the money, and went on to Paris. He is now in Madrid.

Mr. Thomas Shearmain, American statistician, has computed that the share of the wealth of the United States is rapidly passing into the hands of a few people. This tendency is more marked than in any other country. One man W. W. Astor controls $100,000,000, a security man represents a large wealth of $80,000,000, and 25,000, people own one half the wealth of a nation of 60,000,000. The average annual income of the richest, one hundred Englishmen is about $40,000, and of the richest one hundred Americans, the average is not less than $1,200,000, and may exceed $1,500,000, and the limit of concentration has not been reached, Mr. Shearmain prophesies that in 30 years if the present conditions continue 50,000 persons will practically own the country.

Homesteads. Having in mind the repopulation of the deserted farms of New Hampshire, the last legislature of that state provided for the appointment of a commissioner of immigration. That official has sent out circulars, however, without receiving any satisfactory answers. In Canada, for example, thirty farms have been abandoned within, twenty-five or thirty years, and most of the buildings have disappeared. On a few the hay is cut, but a very few. Nothing is left but the house except the remains of summer boarders. Jefferson and Bethlehem of course give a good account of themselves on account of their beautiful situation among the White mountains. Elsewhere the country is almost without houses. Report losses of population and deserted homesteads. Hillsboro, for example, returns twenty seven abandoned farms and seven others which the owners are anxious to sell, the thirty four embracing 2,557 acres of land.
